Specification

The title of the invention is not descriptive. A new title is required that is clearly indicative of the invention to which the claims are directed.

The following title is suggested: ------DISPLAY MODULE INCUDING METAL PLATE FOR HEAT DISSIPATION-----.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Regarding claim 5, the phrase "etc" renders the claim indefinite because the claim includes elements not actually disclosed (those encompassed by "etc"), thereby rendering the scope of the claim unascertainable. See MPEP § 2173.05(d).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Art Unit: 2879

Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Johnson et al. (US 6439731).

Regarding claim 1, Johnson discloses a display module (see Fig 1 and Fig 2) comprising plurality of light emitting elements (illumination source 12, including plurality of LEDs, lines 4-6 of column 5), a plate (heat sink 22, lines 65 of column 7- line 3 of column 8), a circuit board (PCB 10), and a display panel (optical chamber 16 including LCD panel 18), light emitting elements (12) and the circuit board (10) being arranged on the plate (heat sink 22, see Fig 2), the plate being arranged with the light emitting elements and the circuit board being positioned on lateral side or around the display panel (optical chamber 16, on which LCD display 18 is mounted, lines 34-35 of column 6, see Fig 1 & 2).

Though Johnson does not explicitly mention that the plate used as heat sink 22 is a metal plate, it is inherent since metal plates are used as heat sink for its high thermal conductivity.

Further Johnson does not explicitly mention that that the LEDs are wire bonded to the circuit board and a lens being formed atop the light-emitting element, however, having a lens and wire bonding to the circuit board are the inherent structures of an LED device mounted on a PCB board.

Regarding claim 2, Johnson discloses that the light-emitting element is LED (lines 4-6 of column 5).

Application/Control Number: 09/910,762

Art Unit: 2879

Regarding claim 3, Johnson discloses that the light emitting elements (12) on the circuit board (10) and heat sink 22 forms a layered assembly (lines 2-8 of column 8, see Fig 2), which indicates that adhesives are used to make layered structure.

Regarding claim 4, Johnson discloses that the light emitting elements emit light with same color or different color (lines 36-39 of column 5).

Regarding claim 5, Johnson discloses that the display panel is of rectangular shape (lines 34-39 of column 6).

Regarding claim 6, Johnson discloses that the display panel (16 including LCD device 18) is coated with light reflecting lacquer on backside thereof (lines 45-47 of column 6).
